A native Pittsburgher, I did my graduate work at Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, and have served various churches there and in Pittsburgh, including sixteen years at the First Unitarian Church of Pittsburgh. I have been the accompanist for the Renaissance City Choirs since 2010, and over the years I have worked in various capacities with St. Vincent College, the Undercroft and Microscopic Opera companies, and the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. I live in Stanton Heights with my wife Jennifer, who sings with the Sanctuary Choir from time to time. We share our home with our cats, Hillary and Fiona, and we share our yard with our chickens, Ophelia and Julie. Beulah welcomed me in May of 2017, and it has been my privilege to be a part of a music program with such devoted and dedicated people.
